PREFACE . A Chancery judge once had the kindness to inform me, as one of a company of some hundred and fifty men and women not labouring under any suspicions of lunacy, that the Court of Chancery, though the shining subject of much popular prejudice (at which point I thought the judge's eye had a cast in my direction), was almost immaculate.

"A toast to the smartest and most beautiful woman I'll ever know." I said, with a smile while bumping my glass to Mom's. "Oh, stop that." Mom said, her face a bit blushed. We quickly finished our first glass of champagne and Mom didn't hesitate to order another round. We were hardly an hour into the flight and we were both already tipsy.

The wind up mouse comes first. Synthetic fluff coats everything but two little glass bug eyes (no eyelashes) and the inviting plastic ring poking out the back, just begging for a good yank and wiggle. Like a tail plug inverted, although I guess those are usually silicone on the inside. Appropriately, the toy is intended for cats.

Beagles are infamously hard to train. They're pack animals, scent hounds, hunters. They listen more to other dogs than to people, and above all they follow their noses. They're also famously good-natured and famously noisy. They sing, they howl, they bay, they bark, they converse. The repertoire is impressive: an orchestra in a dog.
