I have a Sony Bravia KDL-S32A12U which has just one HDMI socket. I have tried to connect the original Fire Stick (and the new one) to the TV, but all I get is brief picture with the Amazon logo then a black screen. I contacted Amazon and they said that the reason it does not work is that the TV must have the protocol HDMI 2 or above.

Good article about the Sony Cybershot DSC-Hx400v . I'm trying to shoot dogs in action with Continuous Shooting Hi and using Lock-on AF in mode M (ex: for the last shooting, I'm using ISO 125, F/4.0 and 1/1600). The autofocus on the dog seems OK but the whole jpeg picture contains a lot of noise. And so all my photos are of poor quality.

Asked the sales chick and apart from saying they were made by TCL didn't know much about the difference (in her defence I don't think she was from the tv section).
